HEAR IT, FEEL IT, LIVE IT, SHARE IT – GOD'S LOVE

Dear siblings in Christ,

Like a lot of y'all, after Thanksgiving was over, we started getting our house decorated for the Christmas season. Granted, we could only get so much done with a one-month-old and a toddler, but we tried our best! One new thing that we did was to resurrect an old tradition I had growing up, making a gingerbread house. Now, when I was a kid, our "gingerbread" house was really one of those school milk cartons with Graham crackers glued to it with icing. This time, though, we got actual gingerbread with a plan and everything!

The thing is, as y'all with children know, toddlers are not known for following complicated directions very well. I expected as much with Hazel, so I made sure to put the walls and roof all together first, showing her how it was done. Then, with everything finished, we could decorate. And that's the other thing about toddlers. Their idea of "decorating" a gingerbread house doesn't quite line up with what an adult might think of as "decorating."

Random splotches of green, yellow, or red icing. Candy lights and holly leaves pasted in the middle of walls, no relation discernible with the windows or doors—or any other line for that matter. And of course, the inevitable distraction of discovering that icing is, in fact, very sweet and delicious and is as much fun to scrape off and eat as it is to apply to the gingerbread house. It took a lot of patience, and honestly the house still isn't done. But she's been having fun.

For some reason making this haphazard gingerbread house with my almost-three-year-old made me think of how we often get distracted, or follow a plan that we think is good, even though it has no connection to what things could or should look like, ideally. And I wonder how God reacts to the ways we metaphorically put just a huge splotch of green icing in the middle of the wall, rather than following the clearly marked lines. How does God smile at the ways we are so pleased with ourselves? How much does God just love sitting with us, letting us do the unimportant things however we really want to, because it means God gets to sit with us more?

If you're anything like me, you get a little focused on doing something "right." A line is there to be followed, so a random splotch of icing in the middle of the wall is not my idea of doing it correctly. But that's not what building a gingerbread house with my daughter is about, is it? Any more than doing everything "right" with God is what it's about. It's the joy of spending time together, of bonding in the imperfections, of discovering joy in the unexpected viewpoint of someone else.

Maybe that's something to try out this Advent season. Do something with God that brings you joy, even (and maybe especially) when you have no skill in whatsoever. Be silly and get distracted. Get focused on one part of some Bible verse or song or prayer or piece of art and ask God to sit with you in it as you dwell. And invite others to be in it with you, as you make your Christmas cookies or decorate the tree, or when you come up with gifts or games to play when family comes over for Christmas celebrations. There is some kind of joy that can be found when we don't get caught up in doing things "right." As long as we're spending time with God and with one another, that's really what's important.

In Christ,
Pastor Lucas

Psalm 137:4 How can we sing the Lord's song in a foreign land?

Christmas Message to the Northwest Synod of Wisconsin

In 1926, my maternal grandmother left Germany and immigrated to the United States. One of my earliest memories is singing Silent Night (Stille Nacht) in German by the Christmas tree in her small house in Jackson, MN. I wonder what it was like for her to move to a foreign land not speaking the language. I wonder how difficult it must have been for her to sing her song in a foreign land.

Last Christmas most of us couldn't gather inside our church buildings to sing Silent Night on Christmas Eve. Some of us sang to our computer screens, some sang in their cars in the parking lot, some sang with masks. We were all trying to sing the Lord's song in a foreign land, the land of COVID. It has been difficult. Our song has been muted.

Psalm 137 is a lament Psalm. The writer of Psalm 137 is describing the pain of the people who were forced to live in a foreign land after witnessing the destruction of their homeland and their temple. They are grieving the losses, lamenting, crying, and finding it impossible to "sing the Lord's song in a foreign land."

My heart goes out to the Afghan Refugees who are experiencing their first winter at Fort McCoy. I wonder how difficult it will be for them to sing their songs of faith in a foreign land. Many know that they will never go home again.

In Luke 1 Mary sings her song in unknown territory. She has received the message from Gabriel that she will bear God's son and his name is to be Jesus, and he will reign as king forever. This incomprehensible message is confirmed by her relative Elizabeth and changes Mary's life's circumstances. Mary is asked to do what no one has ever done before. This is uncharted and foreign territory for a young girl. She sings her song in a foreign land like her sisters before her Miriam, Ruth, and Hannah. She sings a song of courage, faith, hope, and love.

Luke 1:46-49 And Mary said, "My soul magnifies the Lord, and my spirit rejoices in God my Savior, for he has looked with favor on the lowliness of his servant. Surely, from now on all generations will call me blessed; for the Mighty One has done great things for me, and holy is his name.

This Advent/Christmas/Epiphany season I invite you to reflect on Mary's song as an old song sung in new circumstances. Many of us and our churches find ourselves dealing with circumstances we might not have chosen for ourselves and wish were different, circumstances that might cause us to lament and grieve. We are here now. Sing. Join Mary and the faithful of every time and place, that great cloud of witnesses, and sing of courage, faith, hope, and love. Sing. Sing an old song of trust in unfamiliar territory, and sing a new song of hope in a new land. We are here now.

May the Hope of Advent, Joy of Christmas and Light of Epiphany bring you Peace. Bishop Laurie
